Requirements:

We will provide software that will be a web-based game designed to help people cope with everyday life situations.

The game will feature a pick your own adventure style game that will place the player into a difficult situation, where they are posed three options on how to solve the problem.

The player will be posed with a three equally valid options where they will earn points. Each of these options are to help learn new coping skills.

The player will be able to chose from a collection of characters or upload a user's provided picture.

Each provided character will be associated with a different scenario, with option to use the user's instead.

The game will make use of videos, pictures, and text to move the player through the game.

The points a player earns will be able to be spent on aesthetics to change character and game appearances.

Players will also be able to save their progress to continue at a later time.
